The Dragonriders of Pern takes place on the planet Pern, a world that was colonized by humans from Earth centuries ago. Pern is a dangerous world, with a harsh climate and frequent attacks by deadly creatures known as Thread. To combat Thread, the people of Pern have developed a unique bond with fire lizards, which can breathe fire and are immune to Thread. These fire lizards have been bred with dragons, resulting in the creation of dragonriders, who are the only ones capable of flying the dragons and using their fire breath to destroy Thread.

The dragonriders are organized into a strict hierarchy, with the Harper Hall at the top. The Harper Hall is a repository of knowledge and culture, and its members are responsible for training the dragonriders and maintaining the history of Pern. The dragonriders themselves are divided into several wings, each with its own unique purpose and responsibilities.
